Associated Press - June 1, 2011 9:14 AM ET

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) - Cedar Rapids native Kurt Warner returned to his hometown to help build a Habitat for Humanity home.

The Gazette of Cedar Rapids says it was the third year in a row the former pro quarterback and his wife, Brenda, have helped the city recover from the floods of 2008.

The new homeowner in the Czech Village neighborhood will be Amber Titlbach (TIH'-tuhl-bahk), who says she's amazed by all the help.

Brenda Warner talked about her special connection to the people who work with volunteers to build their Habitat homes.

She says that when she met Kurt, she was a single mom on food stamps, living in low-income housing.

Brenda Warner says she's pleased to be helping Titlbach, a single mom, build Titlbach's new home.
