Kurt Warner made a guest spot on The Ellen DeGeneres Show Thursday, and he revealed that he can't dance and he isn't sure if he's going to retire.

As guests on Ellen often do, Warner made an awkward attempt at dancing, later explaining, "Some of my teammates came over one Thanksgiving and tried to teach me how to walk it out. That's all I got."

As for the interview, the best exchange was this one:

Ellen: "Do you get really scared when you have the ball and they hike it to you?"

Warner: "Not so much when they hike it to me, but when my guy's not open, and I have to run and do something with it, that's when my wife always says, 'Look at this picture. You're scared.' I am."

Ellen: "You have the ball and they're coming at you."

Warner: "Right. And I'm slow and I'm old."

Ellen also asked Warner if he plans to retire, and he hedged: "I'm not really sure yet," Warner said. "I really don't know."
